CITY OF HARTFORD PARKING BAN ENDS EARLY; SCHOOLS REMAIN CLOSED WEDNESDAY

--- NEWS AND COMMUNITY STATEMENT---

(January 27, 2015) Mayor Pedro E. Segarra has announced that the City of Hartford parking ban will be lifted at 8:00pm tonight, January 27, 2015. Residents are asked to retrieve their vehicles from school parking lots no later than 8:00a.m. on Wednesday, January 28. Hartford Public Schools will remain closed through Wednesday to allow crews to clear snow from school lots and sidewalks. City offices will open Wednesday at 10:00 a.m. Trash and recycling pickup will resume Wednesday and residents are asked to place their trash bins at their driveways. Winterfest at Bushnell Park will resume Wednesday. The Emergency Operations Center will close at 8:00 p.m. tonight.

"Our City is slowly getting back to normal. Tomorrow businesses will open, Winterfest will be back on and non-essential City services are resuming," said Mayor Segarra. "We need schools to remain closed to ensure our sidewalks are cleared. We want to make sure our children and teachers can return safely. Again, I want to thank all our residents for complying with the parking ban and allowing our crews to clear the streets. I want to thank DPW, Hartford Fire and Hartford Police for all their hard work overnight, ensuring our city streets were clear and safe during the storm." Snow removal will begin Wednesday evening at 6:00 p.m. and will continue over the next few days. Any questions regarding the parking ban or vehicle retrieval should be directed to Hartford Police at: (860)757-4000.
